IN OUR OPINION . . .

Mr. W. L. Gottenberg, vice president of BJC, recently announced that students may no longer park in areas marked FACULTY, since these areas are in demand by the personnel for whom they were intended.

Although students have had to give up some of the parking spaces, they have not really been subjected to inconvenience.

In the first place, those spaces were originally allotted to the faculty.

Second, there is not, and never has been a shortage of parking places. The most that will be required of the student drivers is a little energy to walk a few extra steps.

Third, BJC is a second home for most of the faculty. Some have been here for a very long time, while students are only here for one or two years. They should be assured of a place for their cars and not have to park in a different place every day.

The members of the faculty have each been given stickers for their cars and books of traffic tickets. These tickets may be given to any student parked in a reserved space.

Instructors won't go around looking for cars parked where they are not supposed to be, but they probably will not hesitate to issue a ticket to students who have parked in faculty zones.

Students might consider this an overly strict way of handling the matter, but if words alone could change the situation, it would have been taken care of already. C.K.S.

classics in literature, art or music through an individual study project during the summer; the history major might delve into some of the principles of elementary physics. Both types of students might profit from the creative experience of building something with their hands. One of the best ways of learning applied psychology first-hand is by rubbing shoulders with laborers on a construction crew.

All of us are tempted to follow the intellectually stifling pathway of spending our leisure time watching TV murder mysteries and horse operas or reading paper-backed comics and dime novels. But if we are to keep alive intellectually we must read challenging and stimulating articles with some of the selections coming from non-fiction best sellers and classics which have stood the test of time. We need to keep abreast of the drama of current history, which can best be understood if we have a knowledge of history before our time. Travel to other lands, with its concomitant need to learn something of culture, language and customs of other people, can be one of the most outstanding educational experiences.

In short, we do not GET an education in college, but we discover avenues where we can BECOME educated by continuing to be students throughout our lives.

Basketball Coach George Blankley Is Featured As Teacher of the Week

Coach George Blankley, who came west to Idaho from Curwensville, Pa., is now in his tenth year at BJC as head basketball coach, and assistant to Coach Lyle Smith in football.

Coach Blankley recently attended the annual National Junior College Basketball tournament in Hutchinson, Kansas, as a representative of region one, of which BJC is a member.

He is vice president of this region and the Kansas meeting was held to formulate rules and procedures for next year.

Coach Blankley attended C of I where he lettered in the four major sports. He was the unanimous selection for Little All-American honors.

As a coach at Caldwell High, Mr. Blankley met with instant success and his team won the state title in basketball.

In 1948 he came to BJC and has met with outstanding success. This season was the first in five years that BJC has not been represented at the Nationals in basketball.

During Coach Lyle Smith's absence in 1950 and 1951 he took charge of the football team and won the conference titles. Under his coaching, the 1950 team went to the Little Rose Bowl in California.

Coach Blankley majored in speech and PE at the C of I, and acquired his master's from the U of I in 1949.

CAMPUS QUERY

By Thomas Dooley

Question: Would you vote for, and support a female candidate for the presidency of the United States?

Verlena Orr (freshman) No, a woman wouldn't have the constitution to qualify for the job. In this day and age men are supposed to be the leaders, and a woman couldn't gain the respect of other countries.

Marlene Jusilla (freshman) No, it isn't a woman's job, in the first place. Besides, men don't like to follow women in anything.

Marvin Hopper (freshman) No, I don't think a woman could stand up under the pressure and strain. People are so used to having a man president they just wouldn't adjust to the idea of having a female president.

Dorothy Curtis (freshman) Yes, if she had the qualifications and proved herself capable, it would be good to have a female president for a change.

Warren Wilde (freshman) No, I don't think a woman would ever be accepted as a good leader in this country or any place else. Men are supposed to be the leaders, especially in politics.

Varian Kimbro (freshman) Yes, if she had the potentialities, integrity, and initiative to fill such a position, I'm sure she would be worthy of the votes.

Student

John McNeil

Featured as the student of the week, in the Associated Student Body, John McNeil.

John was born 24 years ago in Natchez, Mississippi, and grew up. He spent his air force as a staff sergeant. While in the service he was in several foreign lands, including the Azores, Iceland, and Japan.

Although John is only 15 hours in the curriculum, he finds time to be a member of the Esquire club and has a part-time job.

After graduation from BJC, tentative plans are to attend Mississippi State or the University of Idaho.

In comparing Idaho to Mississippi he says that he enjoys the dry climate of the west, south is inclined to be wet.

As the new president of the Associated Student Body, he adds, "I feel that many improvements can be made at BJC."

BJC Broncos Meet NNC At Nampa; Travel To Rexburg for Three Games

BJC's ball team resumes action tonight, after a week's layoff due to bad weather. They will be hitting the road, since all their games are away this week.

Tonight they play NNC at Nampa. So far, BJC has won two out of two from NNC.

Friday and Saturday will find the Broncos invading the domain of Ricks college in Rexburg, Idaho, for three conference games. They will play one Friday evening and a split doubleheader on Saturday.

Library Catalogs New Publications

By Eldon Hendry

New library books catalogued at Boise Junior college this week included:

Skilling Illustrated: A Guide for the Young Skier, by John and Frankie O'Rear, is designed for all the young skiers all over the world and containing 240 photographs. Also there are up-to-date tips on ski equipment, graphic step-by-step coverage of learning techniques, competition and a chapter on a family cross-country ski trip. There is a chapter covering games on skis for the learning child, such as fox and geese, follow the leader and in chapter IV they join a ski school and the more formal training begins.

The Finest Stories of Sean O'Farolain, edited by the author, represents 30 years of writing, including stories from his three earlier collections of classics in the modern literature of a short story, such as, "Midsummer Night Madness," "A Purse of Coppers," "The Man Who Invented Sin," together with eight other stories in this volume. Sean O'Farolain is recognized as one of the masters of a short story and he writes not only of the Irish life but about humanity in its tragic and comic variety.

John Locke, biography by Maun Cranston, is about a great English philosopher, physician, diplomat, a traveler, an amateur of science, a writer of philosophy, religion, economics, and education. Locke was at Oxford during the Puritan interregnum, he took part in the politics during the reign of Charles II, he had a share in the glorious revolution that brought William and Mary to the throne, and died during the reign of Queen Mary, a philosopher with a European reputation.

The Greatness of Oliver Cromwell, by Maurice Ashley, is about one of the most well-known figures of world history, whose character and life has been presented in all degrees of reliability. Maurice Ashley, author, has written Cromwell's life in a new approach in an attempt to portray better the true greatness of Oliver Cromwell and to explain the social, religious, military conditions of that time between the 16th and 17th centuries.

Sights and Spectacles, by Mary McCarty, is about Miss McCarty's column, Theatre Chronicles. The book brings to the view the public criticism of the Broadway plays from 1907 to 1966, and discusses such well-known playwrights as Shaw, Ibsen, Chekhov, O'Neill, George Kelly, Maxwell Anderson and Tennessee Williams.

Ball Games Called For Bad Weather; Resume Play Today

BJC's baseball team goes back into action today after three games were postponed last week due to rain and muddy fields.

Last Wednesday's game with Mountain Home air base was postponed until Saturday. Then, on Saturday, both games were called off due to a muddy field.

Friday's tilt with NNC was also cancelled because of rain.

So far this season, the team has had a split season with six wins and six losses. After losing the first three to C or I Boise came back to win their next four games before losing one to MHAB.

Their conference record stands at one win and two losses as Weber dropped BJC twice.

JAVELIN THROWER

Bardell Bailey heaves a long one in the NNC Invitational as he flipped the javelin 173 feet 9 1/2 inches for a first place in that event. Considering the fact that Ray had flung the javelin for the first time only two days before, and this was his first throw in competition, it rates as a high accomplishment.

To Give Scholarship

The Boise chapter of the Idaho Writers' League has voted to sponsor a Boise Junior college scholarship for a deserving person with an interest in some form of writing. Members voted the project at their last meeting when Mrs. Frances Reid, author of the forthcoming book, "None So Small," and Miss Helen Sewell, author of "Hardhat's," each discussed their books.

Mrs. Grace Jordan reported that 38 manuscripts were received in the annual short story contest and that they are now being judged.

Mrs. William Hopper read some of her poems and Dr. Robert Gardner, BJC creative writing instructor, gave a brief talk.

BJC ROUNDUP

SPRING FORMAL

of the nation's favorite baton wavers and his popularity keeps mounting.

Pastor and his crew are popular at the country's leading ballrooms, colleges, military installations and night clubs. He is known for his strict adherence to the public's dancing demands, giving the enthusiasts just what they want, whether it be a waltz or a mambo.

Musically the Pastor orchestra presents an assortment of arrangements that do not follow a set pattern. Ballads receive a special treatment as do novelties, standards and instrumentals. Yet the basic quality is Tony's own trademark. His years of experience have made him one of the most respected advisers in the music business.

"The Four Coins," whose real names are George Mantalis, Jim Gregorakis, Michael and George James, hail from Cannonsburg, Pa.

The Coins use their own, specially written, fresh arrangements of all the new tunes from "Tin Pan Alley," as well as the old standards and classical pieces.

JUMPER

Hertman Nubiose, BJC's speedster, strains his muscles as he calls for a victory and a new record in the NNC Invitational at Nampa. Last week in the BJC Invitational, Nubiose won a first in the 100 yard dash and a second in the broad jump.
